The study provides insights on how students use Blender features to solve transformations problems. It also shows that Blender training module has increased their interest in learning and solving CG problems like transformations. In future, more such modules can be designed for other CG concepts which require visualization.